

ENGINEERING

These roles will have both practical and consulting variations.

An Engineering Consultant is responsible for the planning, regulations and the design of a project.

Whereas practical will involve the manual hands-on work such as the installation or building of a product.

